Here and There

I wasn't a candidate—but I got elected. It seems that while I yours truly was helping beat Hal Norwood for attorney general the local "machine" got revenge by writing my name on the ticket for Justice of the Peace.

Rents Likely to Jump as Families Abandon Crowding

"Unscrambling" of Families Hikes Demand for Housing

5 TO 20 PER CENT

Increases Are Expected Throughout South This Autumn

ATLANTA, Ga. —(AP)—The kinfolks who descending upon father a few years ago for the duration of the depression are ending their "visits" and as a result the man who pays the rent is going to find his monthly housing bill from 5 to 20 per cent higher in the South this fall.

This family "unscrambling"—to quote a Miami rector, was revealed Friday by a survey of rental agencies as one of the reasons why an upward revision of residential rates is in prospect in most of the large Southern cities within the next month or two.

The trend toward higher rents, as the real estate men see it, is caused to some extent by a renewed demand for the better class of apartment which has accompanied returning prosperity in the nation's business. Many agencies report a marked reduction in vacancies.

One of the sharpest prospective rises was forecast in Little Rock, where a rector predicted apartment rents would advance 10 to 20 per cent by fall.

At the other extreme in Dixie was Richmond, Va., which had no expectation of any appreciable increase in the rate on September first lease. Roanoke, however, planned to follow the general trend with an approximate 10 per cent advance.

Memphis realty companies have announced an increase of 10 to 15 per cent on virtually all apartments and residences, effective October 1, and pointed to a scarcity of desirable living quarters and a rise in prices of coal and janitors' wages as the compelling causes. "Free rent" for half-month occupancy will be eliminated.

Nashville, on the other hand, forecast no general move for higher priced apartments, although the separation of families which have been sharing dwellings was noted, with a consequent decrease in vacancies.

Atlanta's rents were reported as going up about five per cent, with an increased demand for the more expensive apartments. Vacancies here have been reduced by half of the number listed at this time last year.

Carrigan Leads Stewart by 377

They Will Meet in Runoff for Prosecuting Attorney

Interest in the campaign for prosecuting attorney in the Eighth judicial district which is comprised of Miller, Lafayette, Hempstead, Nevada, and Clark counties now enters in the race between Steve Carrigan of Hope, former prosecuting official of the district and Ned Stewart of Lewisville, former state senator.

Carrigan led the field in this race for the first primary with a total of 4780 votes against 4403 for Stewart.

Dick Huie of Arkadelphia was the third man with a total of 4219 and John Vesev of Hope finished fourth with 1508 votes.

These figures are the compilation for the central committee of the various counties in their canvass of Friday.

Carrigan is entering the second leg of the race with a lead of 377 votes.

Counties—	Vesev	Stewart	Huie	Carrigan
Miller	211	1308	1006	1284
Lafayette	92	883	191	453
Hempstead	882	588	722	1699
Nevada	197	840	1010	700

Norwood Concedes Defeat in Letter to Carl E. Bailey

Attorney General Loses in Close and Thrilling Contest

MARGIN ONLY 8,000

But Official Canvass of State Is Practically Complete

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)—Attorney General Hal L. Norwood Saturday conceded his defeat for renomination in a letter to his opponent, Prosecuting Attorney Carl E. Bailey of Little Rock. The latest tabulation of official votes

3,351 Lead Here
Hempstead gave Carl E. Bailey the heaviest percentage support of any county in Arkansas, and the second best showing was in Nevada county.

The two counties combined gave Bailey 4,952 to Norwood's 1,601—a lead for Bailey of 3,351 votes, out of a total state lead of only 8,000. Hempstead went for Bailey 2,970 to 885; and Nevada supported the next attorney general by 1,982 votes to 736.

from 64 counties showed Bailey had a lead of more 8,000 votes.

Parker in Runoff

LITTLE ROCK — With the official vote tabulated from 60 counties and practically complete unofficial returns from the other 15 counties, Prosecuting Attorney Carl E. Bailey of Little Rock maintained a lead of 8,173 Friday night over Attorney General Hal L. Norwood in the race for attorney general.

Bulletins

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)—Hoping to save thousands of dollars' worth of apples now going to waste in north west Arkansas, Governor Futrell Saturday appealed to federal relief officials to authorize the state FERA to can apples for surplus commodities.

BRUSSELS, Belgium. —(AP)—The Belgian national radio broadcasting station late Saturday denied reports that Max Cosyns and Nereu Vanderlist had achieved a stratosphere altitude record over Czechoslovakia.

WASHINGTON. —(AP)—President Roosevelt Saturday asked Hugh S. Johnson to work out an NRA reorganization and to put it into effect. Johnson indicated he would obey orders and carry on at the will of the president. At the White House it was said Roosevelt wants Johnson to continue to administer the National Recovery act which he helped prepare.

Wilson Lacks 199 of Full Majority

Hempstead-Nevada: Wilson 3,120; Monroe 2,144; Timberlake 1,373

With the official canvass completed in both Hempstead and Nevada counties John L. Wilson lacked only 199 votes of having a majority over both his opponents for the state senate in the 20th senatorial district.

The two-county tabulation gives: Wilson 3,120; Luke F. Monroe 2,144; J. C. Timberlake 1,373.

A majority would be 3,319, against Wilson's actual vote of 3,120. There was no announcement Saturday as to plans for a runoff between Wilson and Monroe.

Construction Is Reported Begun on No. 4 Road

FERA Construction Launched West From Ouachita Line

MAY CLOSE UP GAP

Right-of-Way Work Under Way to Rosston Gravel Terminus

CAMDEN, Ark. —Crews have been ordered to start work cutting the right of way for Highway 4 from the Ouachita county line to Rosston, in Nevada county, President Hamp Patton of the Chamber of Commerce, said he had been informed Friday.

FERA workers will be used on this project and the State Highway Commission will complete the road.

The highway, which is in the secondary state system connects Camden with Hope and will shorten that distance 11 miles. It is being gravelled to the Nevada county line now.

Completion of No. 4 would reduce the distance from Hope to Camden from 59 miles to 48.

The road is completed except for a 10-mile gap in Nevada county from the Ouachita line west to Rosston.

Engineer Burnside, in charge of the No. 4 district office, Hope, told The Star Saturday, however, that the right-of-way construction reported under way in the Camden dispatch was apparently FERA work, and he had had no advice regarding the State Highway Commission's attitude on grading and surfacing of the 10-mile gap when the right-of-way is completed.

3-Day Merchants Exhibit and Celebration Is Planned Here

Queen Contest to Start Tuesday, for Program at Fair Park August 30-31 and September 1

A three-day Merchants Exhibit will be staged at Fair Park August 30-31 and September 1 by the Leslie Huddleston post of the American Legion.

The three-day program, beginning on a Thursday and running through Saturday, will consist of a parade, pageant, ball game, dance and a flying circus. Merchants will enter exhibits at the park, with shows, rides and other concessions on the side.

On Thursday night, August 30, a pageant will be staged with a cast of 150 local persons.

Twelve pretty girls will be nominated by local business firms as candidates for queen of the celebration, the queen contest beginning Tuesday, August 21.

Luck Elected Road Overseer

Official Count Completed for all Hempstead Townships

NEW YORK —(AP)—The United Textile Workers of America voted down a proposal Saturday carrying a tax on the workers designed to raise $15,000 a month as a war chest for the projected strike of 500,000 cotton textile workers.

The American Federation of Labor threw its support behind the textile workers as mill employees prepared for a strike affecting nearly a million workers in all the branches of the textile industry.

Arbitration Possible

WASHINGTON. —(AP)—Robert Brucere, chairman of the industrial relations boards for the cotton textile and silk and wool manufacturing industries, told reporters Saturday he would call a meeting of all groups next week to discuss the projected general strike ordered by September 1.

Louisiana Solons Grant Him Power Over New Orleans

Reporters Expelled as Fists Fights Sweep Louisiana House

LAUNCH CITY PROBE

Klan Attacks Long—Session Suggested to New Orleans

BATON ROUGE, La. —(AP)—Amidst parliamentary confusion, marked by the exclusion of newspaper men from the house, slugging in the lobby, fist fights on the floor, and arrests in various parts of the state house, the Louisiana legislature Saturday handed over to the Huey P. Long machine the broadest powers of military and police control ever conferred on a single faction in Louisiana.

The legislature, directed by Senator Long, who remained to the end to see his proposals go through, adjourned at 3:11 Saturday morning.

Equipped with the broad powers conferred by the legislature Senator Long Saturday prepared to launch a new offensive against his arch foes, the New Orleans city government, by invoking a legislative investigation into the New Orleans city government.

Klan to Attack Long

ATLANTA, Ga. —(AP)—An attack by the Ku Klux Klan here Friday on Huey Long was made public almost simultaneously with an attack on the Klan by George W. Christians, commander-in-chief of the "Crusader White Shirts."

The garb of the Klan is a white robe but the two organizations are in apparent conflict.

At Baton Rouge Senator Long spluttered and used incoherent invectives when asked to comment on the Klan attack.

Virtually dormant since its plunge from the political heights of 10 years ago, the Klan, through its imperial wizard, Hiram W. Evans, sounded a "bugle call" to remove Senator Long from power and retire him. The announcement said the work would be left to the Louisiana Klan.

George W. Christians from his headquarters in Chattanooga made public a letter to the imperial wizard saying he had noticed that the Klan had dropped the racial and religious issues to "actively fight for Americanism against Communism and alien radicals."

Christians then asked a series of questions wanting to know how the Klan stands among other things "on the proposal to nationalize our banking system," and "give the politicians complete control over credit so they can shove rough Johnson and smooth Twigg and the rest of the alphabet soup down our throats."

He also said that "I am inclined to think" that the new Klan is "merely stolen part of our program for sucker bait."

Invites Secession

JACKSON, Miss. —(AP)—A suggestion that New Orleans and the parishes east of the Mississippi river join the state of Mississippi to evade the political wrath of Senator Huey P. Long was advanced Friday by Maj. G. L. Donald, president of the Deposit Guaranty Bank & Trust Co. of Jackson. Major Donald added that Mississippi

Some Odors are Hard, Some are Easy to Remember

One well established fact in connection with the link between odors and memory is that certain odors are remembered much more easily than others. Most people can remember the odors of the country as compared to those of the city. And most of us can remember the smell of musk, carbolic acid and violets.

It is, however, rather difficult to recall the easily recognized odor of garlic or asafetida.

It is rather well established that most people dislike the odors associated with the bodies of other persons, but are not sensitive of their own smell. It is believed that the practice, among certain savage tribes of rubbing noses at the time of greeting rather than shaking hands of kissing, is due to the early tendency of recognition through the sense of smell.

Authorities now believe that the sense of smell is produced by the physical and chemical action of particles of material or gases which stimulate the sensitive nerves ending in the nose.

Neil Leitch, the psychologist, has pointed out that the sense of smell in the human being is modified by previous experience and also by vision, taste, touch and hearing. For this reason, a certain odor may be pleasant at one time and nauseating at another.

It is perhaps for this reason that also, that we can easily remember what we see, but we have difficulty in some cases of remembering odors. For instance, it is easy to remember what a certain species of rose looks like, but very few persons can remember when it smells like.

Professor Leitch points out that many curious observations have been made on characteristic body odors. Infants are held to smell of rancid butter, young persons, of goats and old people of dried leaves.

Negroes are said to smell strongly of ammonia, Indians of acetylene, Australians of phosphorus, while the Chamanian is described as having a musty odor. The ethnologist Parke, describes Monbutu women of having a strong Gorgonzola perfume.

Europeans frequently pride themselves on their absence of smell. As a matter of fact owing to their hairiness, they have a much stronger smell than some of the colored races.

It is also recognized that variations in body odor are brought about by emotion, by certain drugs and by certain types of disease. In medicine odor plays a relatively small part.

Victorians the doctor of an early age used to diagnose disease by body odor. Chemical tests made in the laboratory are far more certain. Before the coming of such chemical tests, it was customary to smell the breath as an indication of the presence of diabetes or uricemic unconsciousness.

There are doctors who said they could smell diphtheria of typhoid. Nowadays the finding of the germs which cause the disease is a much more certain method of diagnosis.

How an Ordinary Lad Became a Gangster

"Brain Guy" by Benjamin Tappan

In the story of how an ordinary young man turns from a law-abiding citizen into a gangster.

It tells about a young chap in New York who collects for a real estate office. His job takes him down into the fringes of gangland, for his firm owns many tenements; and while he isn't adverse to shaking the tenants down for his own benefit, when he finds them conducting illegal businesses in the company's property, he is still more or less well intentioned and upright—until, suddenly, he loses his job.

Then almost without meaning to he drifts into the underworld. It's hard to find a job and the lure of easy money is strong. He uses his knowledge of the local stockholders' financial arrangements to tip off a stick-up artist. A series of corner hold-ups follow and he takes his cut.

At first he refuses to look on himself as a member of the underworld. He will collect a stake and then quit, go somewhere else and get into a honest business. But he keeps getting in deeper and deeper. He finds himself looking up to as the "brain guy"

Olive Roberts Barton Wonders Why Parents Tease Children by Asking What They Want

By Olive Roberts Barton

"What do you want for your birthday, Charles?"

Dad was looking large, important and generous, so Charles answered promptly: "A vise."

"A vise?"

"A vise. I can't hold things very good."

"Well."

"—very well. I tried to saw off the sheet pieces for the bird house I am making. I had to sit on two rocks and put the board between."

"What on earth are you making a bird house for at this time of the year? They'll be flying away before long."

"I want to make about six for next year. And some birds do stay all winter. I want a vise to hold things. Dad—I'm always fixing something."

Dog Fails to Sway

"How about a nice dog?"

Charles was tempted. "Gee—I'd love a dog. A great big one all mine. Are you going to get me a dog?"

"Thinking of it—but it won't be a big one. Mother wants—I mean I believe a Biston would be nice or a Scottie."

"I guess I'll take the vise, Daddy. All right."

"I'll see, maybe."

And so Charles told all the boys he was going to get a vise for his birthday. He was the envy of the crowd.

"I wish my Dad would listen when I ask for things," said Bob. "I wanted a pair of new tires for my bike and didn't go and get me a set of 'Boy Booklovers.' Gosh I like to die."

"They were good books. I read them all," declared studious Edward. "I wish my folks would buy me books. Mother bought me a violin. I hate violins."

"You're lucky," said Ted. "Dad don't want me to play. Mom had to sneak my lessons out of grocery money. I wish I had a decent violin to play on."

"I'd give you mine, but I can't," said Edward. "Mother would faint."

"And I'd give you all my books," grumbled Bob, "but Mom thinks they look swell in my book case in my room. Can I use your vise, Chuck?"

"Sure—we'll all use it. I'm fixing up the end of the cellar for a carpenter shop. We can make all kinds of things."

"I'll make a boat," dreamed Bob, and maybe you'll get a latte for Christmas."

And so Charles' birthday came and he got a Pekinese. And Bob's came and he got another set of books. Edward got a music stand and Ted a ball glove and bat from his father.

What the use of asking them what they want?

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOOTS is a CHICKEN, is and pretty little one to be jealous of the other girls in her crowd at Larchmont, fashionable New York suburb. Sylvia RAYNES, a sweet girl in town, dislikes Boots and falls to invite her to a party at the Larchmont Club. Boots accepts a last-minute invitation from Miss WAREHAM, a wealthy prominent, to a dinner at the club that same night.

Quite innocently, Boots is thrown into an embarrassing situation by HARRY WHITE, one of Sylvia's beaux, who has been drinking. He tries to induce Boots to go swimming with him and when she runs away, goes off in a boat alone and falls overboard. He rescues her and she is furious. She resolves to punish Boots and multiplies the story in a way to discredit the other girl.

MRS. FERNELL, prominent member of the Woman's Club, asks Boots to resign from the club. Boots calls to apologize and Boots is coldly unresponsive.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

BOOTS' acquaintance with Hardy was interrupted by the arrival of the Beach Club swimming instructor, Russ Lunk. Harless, looking by comparison to Hardy's leanness and firmness rather the "roughneck" that Patty had dubbed him, he stood there grinning at her.

"You forgot something," Boots stared at him. Then she smiled. He was holding her vanity case out to her, a frivolous affair of one horrible shell, big and thin. She must have left it in the car when he drove her home.

"Oh, yes. Thanks a lot." She began rather haltingly to make the necessary introductions. "Mr. White—Mr. Lunk."

Hardy bowed a little too stiffly and said they knew each other. He had a Russ's duck trousers were rather bedraggled looking. The virile white sweater, in contrast to Hardy's beautifully tailored flannels, looked utterly hopeless.

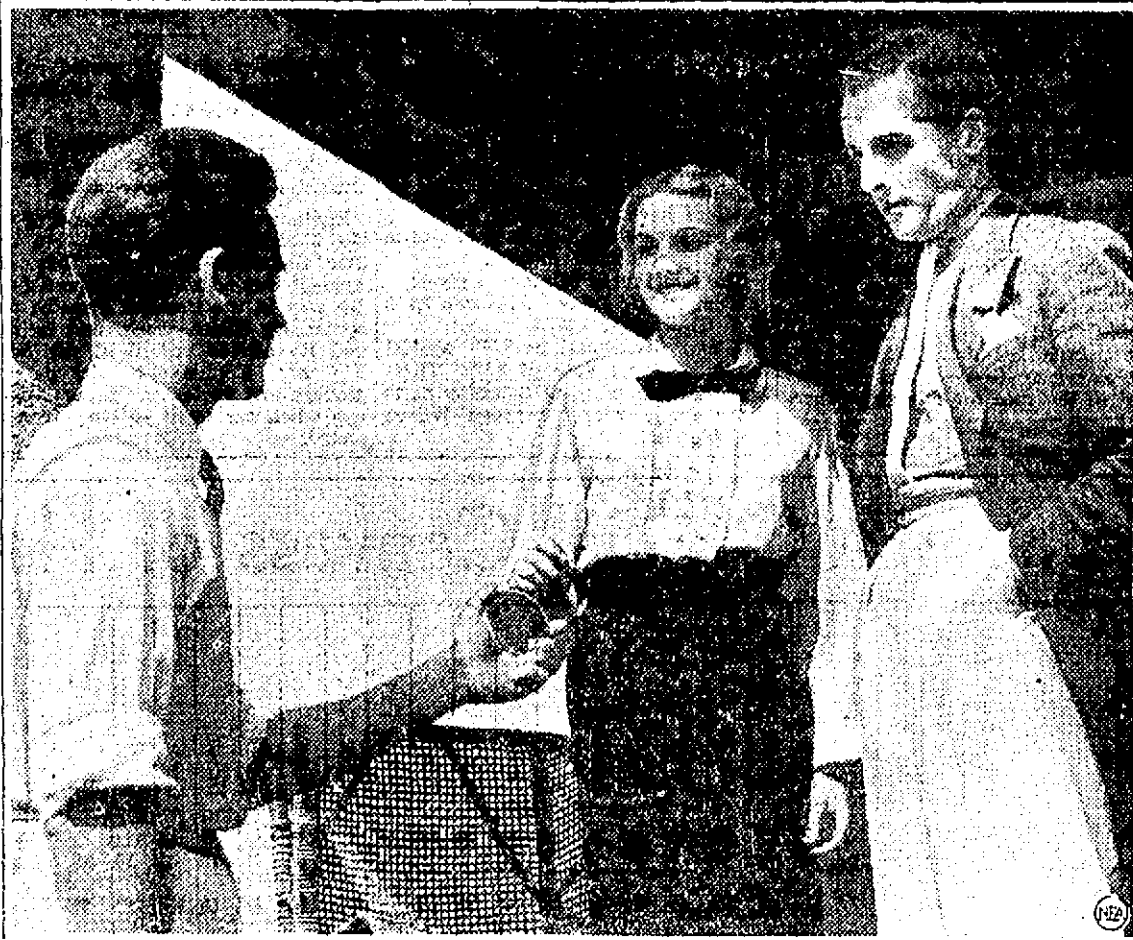

"Well, I'll be seen you. Thought you might want the gadget."

Boots came out of her trance to thank him again. This time too profusely, because she felt sorry for him and hated to see him snubbed. Who was Hardy—what did he think he was—to go high but on her all of a sudden?

Her momentary sense of embarrassment faded in the face of Hardy's cool arrogance. What if he did assume, quite without warrant, that the Beach Club guard was utterly friendly with her? It was none of his business. If she were going to be one of Larchmont's girl outlaws she might as well play the role to the limit.

As Russ's old car, parked a few doors down the street, chugged spasmodically out of sight she said coolly, "He's a grand person, really," with an enthusiasm she was far from feeling. She knew little or nothing about the square-jawed, big-shouldered young man with the shock of sandy hair, except that he obviously admired her.

THE golden youth beside her looked at her to puzzlement. What had gone wrong with the interview? He was accustomed to flattery. Interest. He would have sworn this little thing would be grateful for any crumbs of flattery he might lose her way. But some how she wasn't playing up. He felt it had been darned decent of him to come around in the first place. Why, he hardly knew the girl although he had always thought her flaxen yellow hair and big brown eyes a delectable combination. She could be a knock-out, he told himself solemnly, with the right clothes and more sophisticated makeup. Of course she was one of the younger crowd. Why, he was two years older. That made a lot of difference. She had spirit though. She threw up her head

"You forgot something," Russ said. He held out the vanity case.

Like a young girl and he liked that husky voice of hers. It had a strident undertone to it. You could do something with this girl. . . .

What did she mean by smiling that way at old Redneck from the club? Something ought to be done about it. He wasn't her class.

Thus Hardy's thoughts. . . .

He had been relieved, a few moments before, when Boots had assured him he had nothing to do with any discomfort she might be suffering at the hands of the good ladies he casually dubbed "the virile witches." Every woman over 20 was a witch to this arrogant, handsome young man. But now he wasn't sure he wanted to have his kind offer so casually dismissed. If Isabel was right Boots was "in bad" with the witches. He knew the town; it would make her suffer. Selfish as he was, Hardy was decent enough underneath to feel a slight qualm at the prospect. He had been holed as an owl the other night, Isabel had assured him. Sylvia had ridden him badly when he had met her and he'd still had the hangover. He hadn't been very nice to Sylvia. He had high-tailed her all over the place. Sure, Sylvia was nice but she mustn't act as though she owned him. He couldn't stand that. Nothing burned him up so much as the inevitable feminine possessiveness. He shielded at the least hint of it and Sylvia had made a fatal error in showing her hand. . . .

HE therefore turned on Boots now his most devastating smile. Older women than she had been known to be stirred by it, and Boots had been hurt and baffled all day. Small wonder she succumbed to the charm he managed to inject into his agreeable voice.

"Be a sweet thing and prove you're not mad at me. Come out tonight. We'll go places. Dance." Well, why not? She had, she told herself, nothing to lose and everything to gain. Her father wouldn't object. All the young men in Larchmont looked pretty much alike to him.

"All right," she said coolly. She had a "sort of date" with Johnny but that could be broken easily. It would be a triumph to be seen going places with Hardy and as long as the Mrs. Fernelles of the world had turned thumbs down on her she might as well have some fun out of the situation.

Hardy went away a bit surprised at himself. If the truth be told, at the way things had fallen out. He hadn't in the least intended to take this girl places, he grumbled. He had meant to do the graceful thing, say he was sorry for getting her mixed up in something awkward which hadn't been her fault. But Redneck's arrival had stirred something primitive and jealous in him.

It would be amusing, Hardy reflected, driving away in a cloud of dust, to show the town what a queen this yellow haired girl could be. Maybe this was how Svengali had felt about Trilby. . . .

When Boots appeared in the doorway some hours later, immaculate in sleeveless white silk frock with a brief emerald green jacket worn over it, you would never have suspected that she had washed dishes and wrung out tea-towels only a short time before. She was cool, scented, self-possessed.

"Hi!" She lifted her slim hand and let it fall in the greeting.

Hardy gave her an approving glance. "Good girl. Thought you might change your mind."

She widened her eyes. "Oh, why?"

"Thought the town fathers might be writing you letters about my reputation."

She smiled a far-away smile. "Oh, I guess it isn't as bad as all that."

Hardy was frankly nettled. At 21 he was rather proud of being known as the bad boy of Larchmont. He had always been able to slide gracefully out of difficulties. His own undoubted charm had something to do with this. But he wanted this girl to understand that usually he was regarded as rather

Withdrawal

By Helen Welschmer

Oh, all the time my plant hand—

Had rested in your own,

Pledged to your fealty, my dear,

And to your love alone,

YOU were a restless sort of lad

With eyes on sailing ships,

On soldier men who marched to drums,

And gipsy women's lips.

BUT now that I've withdrawn my hand

And you must reach to touch

The fingers that I, too, admit

Clung to you overmuch,

YOU never, never wonder off!

Desire to hold your love

Has made me see how pleasantly

The best steel lines a glove!

Kiwanis Leader Is Guest of City

Claude Faulhaber Speaks
—Fred Keller, Rotary,
Introduced

The lieutenant governor for this district of the Kiwanis, Claude Faulhaber, was honor guest and chief speaker at the Friday night meeting of the Hope club.

The meeting was presided over by Charles Dana Gibson, president, with the invocation being given by the Rev. G. F. X. Strasser. Following the invocation, the Rev. Mr. Strasser led the members in song.

Fred Keller, Arkansas district governor of Rotary International, meeting with the Rotary in an adjoining room, was introduced to the Kiwanians by John P. Cox. Mr. Keller made a short speech of greeting and lauded the spirit of co-operation between the two local civic clubs.

Lieutenant-Governor Faulhaber in his first visit to Hope since his elevation to that office sketched briefly
the future of civic clubs and the importance of a worthwhile objective to the progress of a club. Mr. Faulhaber congratulated the Hope Kiwanis on their progressive work and cited other clubs that were outstanding because of their enthusiasm for civic projects.
He also recalled that he had attended the initial meeting of the charter members of the Hope club, with W. S. Atkins presiding.

Mr. Faulhaber closed with a warm invitation to the delegates of the club to attend the Missouri-Kansas-Arkansas Kiwanis convention at Excelsior Springs, Mo., which opens on October 7.

Other guests of the club were Mr.
Smith, relief manager of Malco Thermex Inc., and Mr. Fred Nowlin.

14th Straight for "Schoolboy" Rowe

Detroit's El Dorado Star
Again Smashes New York

NEW YORK —(AP)—Lynwood, (Schoolboy) Rowe, Detroit's dinky 22-year-old pitching sensation from El-Dorado, Ark., stood the New York Yankees on their heads Friday for the fourteenth time in three days and won his fourteenth consecutive victory of the American League campaign with a dazzling shutout performance.

Despite a heavy fall in the second inning when he tripped over third base and nearly broke his ankle, Rowe recovered from a streak of subsequent wildness to check the Yankees with three singles strike out 11 batters and add a 2-0 triumph to his remarkable winning streak.

The giant "boy wonder" who is now within two games of equaling the record American League streak of 16 held jointly by Joe Wood, Walter Johnson and Bob Grove, pitched the Tigers to an even break in the crucial series and thrilled a crowd of 43,771
spectators.

Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, obtaining revenge for his shelling in the first game of the series, blanked the Tigers 5-0 in today's opener, thanks to a heavy early attack on Vic Sorrell, but the Tigers left the Yankee stadium with three out of the five games to their credit and a commanding margin of five and a half games over
New York in the pennant race.

Brilliant pitching has marked both games of the double hit but Rowe was easily the hero as he handed the Yankees their shutdown for 1934 and only they third they have experienced in two seasons. Bob Grove turned the triset goal.

The big schoolboy was wilder, but also more effective than when he whipped the Yankees in the second game of last Tuesday's double-header.
He was in serious trouble only once,
in the sixth, when the Yankees filled the bases with two out on a pair of passes and a single. Rowe fanned Bill Dickey to close this critical inning besides striking out Babe Ruth and hitting in the eighth for Ben Chapman and whiffing Lou Gehrig in the ninth. Rowe struck out everybody who faced him except Saltzgeber and George Siskirk, the recruit outfielder.

This was Rowe's fourth victory over the Yankees since he began his winning streak. He had a narrow escape from serious injury when he caught his foot in the bag while running to third in the second inning. The big youngster went down like a log, and twisted his left ankle and rolled in apparent agony while the players rushed to him. It looked as though he was through for the day but after first aid treatment and a rest he hobbled back into action and shook off the effects of the mishap.

Keller to Speak to Men's Class

Jonesboro Educator at M.
E. Church at 9:45 a. m.
Sunday

Fred Keller, superintendent of Jonesboro schools, district governor of Arkansas Rotary and prominent layman in the Christian church, will speak to the Men's Bible class of First Methodist church at 9:45 o'clock Sunday morning.

Here for his official visit to Hope Rotary club Friday night Mr. Keller remained over as guest of E. F. Mc-Padden, past district Rotary governor, to address the church class on Sunday.

Mr. Keller called at The Star office
Saturday, where the editor discovered
both of them were alumni of the University of Missouri School of Journalism. Mr. Keller in 1915, and The Star editor in 1923.

NORWOOD CONCEDES

al from last Tuesday's Democratic primary election.

The vote was: Bailey 127,143; Norwood 118,969.

More than 246,000 votes had been accounted for in the official and unofficial returns, exceeding by many thousand the pre-election estimates of the votes to be cast.

stated contest proceedings there, although the committee to canvass the vote Bailey's friends in Phillips county insisted that the proceedings there, although illegal voting and illegal election practices in some precincts.

The Phillips county Central committee was still in session Friday night counting numerous absentee ballots and otherwise completing the work of certifying the primary vote.

A runoff primary race August 28 for state auditor was virtually assured tonight as the official and unofficial vote from more than 2,000 of the 2,100 precincts in the state, left the incument J. Oscar Humphrey almost 12-000 votes short of a majority over
Charles J. Parker, Camden and R. W.
Parrish, Little Village.

The vote was: Humphrey, 105,403;
Parker, 69,620 and Parrish, 47,590.
Plans for his campaign in the runoff primary were continued Friday by Mr. Parker, who criticized a suggestion that he withdraw from the race in favor of Mr. Humphrey to avoid the necessity of another election. Mr.
Parker said this would defeat the purpose of the runoff primary law.

Mr. Parker's statement follows:
"After a close study of the returns from the first primary and the receipt of many messages from my friends and supporters over the state
I have definitely decided to take advantage of the privilege afforded me by the law and again ask the suffrage of the voters for the office of state auditor.

"Answering the suggestion of the evening paper in Little Rock that I withdraw from the race because of the expense involved I desire the voters to decide by a majority between myself and my opponent. It was to prevent rule by a minority that the second primary law was passed and minority rule is both unfair and un-American.
"Naturally if I were not convinced I would be returned a winner I would not care to undertake the task of conducting a second campaign upon the heels of the strenuous one I have just concluded, but I must be true to my friends and supporters and they are demanding that I offer myself in the second primary so that the voters may finally decide the issue.

"Hundreds of the friends and supporters of Bob Parrish, who finished third in the first contest have assured me that they would be wholeheartedly for me in the second primary while the host of friends who so vigorously supported my first campaign have assured me that they were even more determined than ever to see me elected to the office of state auditor.

"My friends think that it would be unmanly for me to shrink from this final test of courage. They are insisting that I remain in the race in order that they may prove that the results of the first primary were not conclusive. "The suggestion that I withdraw, which came from no source whatsoever other than the evening paper, seems to have been inspired.
Certainly no such suggestion has reached me from any other quarters.

"The second primary law was passed in the interest of fair elections and I do not recognize the right of anyone to deny me the opportunity afforded by the law.

"A very large percentage of the counties over the state have runoff elections of their own, and it will cost no one an extra dime except the candidate themselves to have this one 1934 state race included in the runoff. If the candidate who runs second in the first primary is expected to withdraw at the first suggestion of the rival's supporters then the effect of the law is entirely nullified.

"I have a legal right to remain in this contest. My duty to my friends demands that I do so and I shall cer-

P. Dean Returns to the Cardinals

But Brother Dizzy Hasn't Made Up His Mind
as Yet

ST. LOUIS, —(AP)—Paul, the silent half of the pitching Deans, returned to the good graces of the Cardinals Friday, but loquacious Dizzy remained outside the fold.

Paul donned his uniform after signing a statement saying he "regretted his unfortunate misunderstanding" with Manager Frankie Frisch. Brother
Dizzy was in Chicago, where he enlisted the aid of baseball's high commissioner, Keneshaw Mountain Landis,
in smoothing out his troubles with Frisch.

Returning of Paul was interpreted as meaning that Dizzy can come back whenever he promises to be good.
"I know I was in the wrong when I refused to go to Detroit and again when I refused to go on the field when asked to do so by Manager Frisch," Paul said in his statement as released by Sam Breadon, Cardinal president.

For not going to Detroit for an exhibition game Monday, Paul was fined $50 and Dizzy $100. Both were suspended indefinitely when they balked at putting on their uniforms when Frisch told them of their fines.

Paul refused to betray the faith of my friends.

"There are many things regarding the late primary which are unknown to the laymen. There are many signs which indicate that this truly my time. I firmly believe that a large majority of the independent voters of Arkansas—those uninfluenced by other consideration and other races, are eager to support me for the office, and I would be unworthy of their friendship if I did not give them the every man or woman who supported my friend Bob Parrish. I also solicit opportunities.

"I earnestly solicit the support of
my friends.

Noise Instead of Noise!

HEY! MORE SHELLS. SEND A PLANE AFTER MORE SHELLS.

HOLD ON! STOP THE SHOOTING.

WHAT'S TH' MATTER, NOW?

MR. BOARDMAN CAN'T SLEEP FOR THE SHOOTING.

HE COULDN'T SLEEP ANYWAY. FIRST IT'S TOO QUIET—THEN IT'S TOO NOISY. MY GOSH! AIN'T THAT GUY EVER SATISFIED?

WOT HE NEEDS IS A POKE IN THE NOSE.
